

An Afternoon of Wedding Flower Inspiration

The Elvetham, Hartley Wintney – 20th June 2010 at 2:30pm – 5:30pm

If you are starting to plan your wedding, choosing dresses, venues and colour schemes, then your next step is to start thinking about how to style your flowers for your bridal party and your venue. Flowers can play such an important role at your wedding, creating the mood and setting the scene. Most people will agree that flowers can turn a black canvas into something very special, expressing joy, romance, drama, elegance – but to get the look right you need to build a clear picture of what you want to achieve and then be able to convey that to your florist.

Emma Lappin will be holding an afternoon of wedding flower inspiration to guide you through the key aspects of putting your floral scheme together. Whether you have decided to do the flowers yourself or are using a wedding flower specialist, the afternoon will cover every different aspect of wedding flowers that you need to consider in order to create the most beautiful scene and backdrop to your day.

Emma will start off by showing you how to create a mood board, taking snippets from magazines and also using online tools and blogs. She will talk you through how to pick your colours and show you combinations that you may not have thought of. If you have chosen your dress, you may find it useful to find out what style of bouquet is going to work with the shape and material of your outfit.

Emma has worked in many of the most beautiful venues across the South of England and will also guide you through the type of styles that work in different types of venue. There are some stunning seasonal flowers in this country, and Emma will let you know what is available at certain times of the year, as well as introducing you to some new blooms that you may not have considered before.

For those of you that are taken with the DIY trends there will be a demonstration on how to get it right. There will also be plenty of inspiration on show with tables set up for you to take away ideas.

Emma's guide on how to 'Get the most from your wedding flower budget' is invaluable to any bride, irrelevant of budget. She will talk you through the different types of wedding flowers you will need for your day and how to go about finding the perfect florist.

Emma is passionate about wedding floristry and has run her own business for seven years following her work with the very best in London. For any bride in the planning stages of her special day, this is definitely an afternoon not to be missed. Set within the beautiful library of the Elvetham Hotel, with a quintessential afternoon tea in the conservatory overlooking the gardens, it's the perfect way to learn about wedding flowers and be inspired to create a stunning floral scheme for your wedding.

Contact Emma via e-mail emma@emmalappinflowers.com or phone 01256 473839/07528 947276 to book your place. The cost of the afternoon is £15 which includes afternoon tea.
